

Photo by Bachrach.
COL. HENRY W. BUNN.

COL. HENRY W. BUNN, ECONOMIST, 60, DIES

Retired Army Officer Victim of Injuries Received in Fall on Icy Sidewalk.

SERVED IN MORO UPRISING

Fought Overseas in World War,
Retiring in 1920 — Wrote
Articles on Politics.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ONEONTA, N. Y., Jan. 29.— Colonel Henry W. Bunn, author and a charter member of the Yale Club, died suddenly today at Fox Memorial Hospital. He was 60 years old.

Colonel Bunn slipped and fell on the icy sidewalk near his home here, breaking his collar-bone and arm and suffering internal injuries. Death was ascribed to cerebral hemorrhage.

Born in Morris, N. Y., on May 29, 1874, he was a son of the late Dr. Albert Bunn and Elizabeth Darling Bunn. As an infant he was taken by his missionary parents to Wu Chang, China. His father opened the first medical mission in China.

He was editor of War Summary, a confidential report of the military intelligence division for ranking staff officers of the State Department.

Survivors are his brother, Albert C. Bunn of Kew Gardens, Queens, a nephew, William Bunn of Brooklyn, and a niece, Mrs. Arnold Griffiths of Delhi.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home here. The Rev. Alfred Miller will officiate. Burial will be at Morris.

Colonel Bunn was graduated from Yale in 1894 and two years later received a Ph. D. degree from the same institution. For several years he was an instructor at Phillips Exeter Academy.

In 1900 he enlisted in the Twenty-second Infantry Regiment of the United States Army and served in the Philippines during the Moro uprising. He was promoted to second lieutenant in 1903 and was transferred to the artillery. Raised to a captaincy in 1911, he served overseas during the World War and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was retired for disability in 1920.

On retirement from the army, Colonel Bunn devoted himself to a study of the economic and political problems of Europe. He was a contributor to The Atlantic Monthly, THE NEW YORK TIMES Magazine Section and prepared a series of weekly articles in The Annalist entitled "Europe From an American Point of View."

He also presented a weekly résumé of world political events for The Washington Star, a series which began in 1921 and continued through 1931, as well as writing several yearly reviews of world politics for The Atlantic Monthly.