Station WCHN, Norwich, N. Y.

Dear Editor:

I attended a meeting of a ladies group one night as a reporter when the question of youth control came up for discussion. A young mother told us that even though her home was very happy, and both parents were careful not to neglect the children by going out and leaving them by themselves, their eldest boy had begun to show gangster tendencies. He preferred associating with older boys — some of whom had been in the police news — than to be the son they thought he should be.

"He is past 15 and insists on going out every night, and will never tell us where he is going," she said. "At times we would learn that he was in perfectly legitimate places, like the YMCA or a basketball game, but he never tells us. Other times we learned that he was on the street with boys we would rather he wouldn't associate with. He has learned to smoke and now does it openly."

The young mother went on to say that in his early youth the boy used to go fishing and to ball games with his father, and they were like pals, yet as the lad grew older he wandered away from his father, learned to use profane language and caused general concern.

"I always thought we were doing right by our 'boy,'" the mother said. "Certainly we did not neglect him. We attended church and Sunday School and took him along with us. Now he stays in bed until noon on Sunday, and if I speak to him about going with us he tells me that he is going to live his own life and no woman was going to tell him what to do."

The listeners were silent as the young mother sat down. She certainly appeared to have a problem. Her words were food for thought.

In a few minutes there was a movement in the audience and another mother rose to her feet. Her voice was a bit shaky at first, but she soon forgot that in the earnestness of her talk.

"I am 77 years old," she said, "and my boy's name is inscribed on that monument in the park. He died June 17, 1942, while fighting for his country."

"For the encouragement of this young mother here, and for you who have problems with your teenage children, let me say that at one time—at the very age of this young woman's son — my son became a problem. At 15 he would skip school. At 16 he learned to smoke. He stayed out at night. I found articles in his room that I knew he didn't buy. At 17 he came home drunk. Dur-

Savings Stamps Available At P.O. And Area Schools

The Gilbertsville Post Office has been commended by Glen R. Johnson, National Director of the U.S. Savings Bonds Division, for service to the Treasury Department's School Savings Program.

Many area schools offer School Savings Bonds—part of the nationwide Savings Bonds Program. Savings Stamps in five denominations, from 10 cents to $5, are on sale at all times in the post office and on Stamp Day in schools. As pupils fill their albums—which are provided free—they exchange them for U. S. Savings Bonds at their bank.

Local Residents Will Receive "Zip Kits" From P.O.

Gilbertsville residents will have an opportunity to easily put ZIP into their mail in October, Postmaster Seaman reported recently.

During this month, the post office will deliver to every household a kit of eight postal cards which can be mailed back to the post office with addresses needing ZIP Codes. Each completed card will be sent to the post office which services the "zipless" address and the proper code will be added before the form is returned to the sender.

No postage will be needed on these cards.

Each of the eight postal cards in the kit will contain a message encouraging the general use of ZIP Code. There will be a ninth card of instructions.

SNB Volunteers Make, Fill 62 Gift Bags For Soldiers

Miss Ada Smeader and a group of volunteers in the South New Berlin area made 62 red and green ditty bags and generously filled them with gifts for servicemen in Vietnam, according to the Chenango County Chapter of the American Red Cross. These bags, with others donated in the Chapter, will be shipped to Vietnam early in October for distribution to combat soldiers at Christmas.

Thanks to this group of people in South New Berlin, 62 soldiers will have a little brighter Christmas with these thoughtful gifts from volunteers who cared enough to contribute them.

RETAIN THE RIGHT OF CHOICE

The entire proposed new Constitution will be presented in one package for YES or NO vote on the voting machine November 7. This one-question presentation temporarily confronts the people with a take it or leave it, like it or lump it ultimatum. There will be no opportunity at this year's election for the people to endorse the changes they approve and reject the changes they disapprove.

Thus, it is said that voters must make their decision on "balance." According to that thinking, the voter who concludes that the desirable changes outweigh the undesirable would vote for the whole package. The voter who concludes that the undesirable changes outweigh the desirable would vote "NO". That analysis sums up the situation as of this year's election day.

Voters should remember, however, that there is an alternative method for amending the Constitution—a method of PRESENTING PROPOSED CHANGES SEPARATELY and enabling the people to EXERCISE THEIR RIGHT OF CHOICE.

If the voters endorse this whole package of Con Con proposals in order to obtain those parts of which they approve, then they will be saddled with the provisions of which they disapprove. The undesirable provisions will be firmly fixed. They will be difficult to remove hereafter and no doubt impossible to correct BEFORE THEIR DAMAGE HAS BEEN DONE.

On the other hand, if the voters reject the package they will avoid the undesirable features and MERELY POSTPONE the opportunity to enact the desired provisions.

If the proposed new Constitution is approved at this year's election, three sections of one article would become effective on January 1, 1968. Those three sections provide for the incurrence of state debt without vote of the people and authorize state and local governments to give or loan money to any private person, association or corporation for economic and community development purposes.

All the other provisions of the proposed Constitution would not become operative UNTIL JANUARY 1, 1969. If the people reject the one package presentation at this year's election, desired changes in the present Constitution can be passed by the Legislature in 1968, receive second legislative endorsement in 1969 and be submitted separately to the voters at the 1969 election thus giving the people opportunity to exercise their right of choice.

Proposed changes approved by the people in 1969 would become effective JANUARY 1, 1970 or ONLY ONE YEAR LATER than the date on which they would become operative under the package proposal on the ballot this year. You do not have to take all or nothing. You can vote NO on the Con Con package and call upon the Legislature for a better choice.

Future Albany Reports will provide information on costs and consequences of specific proposals in the Con Con package.

WHY INCREASE YOUR TAXES?

A tax increase leaves you less of your earnings to spend and enables government to spend more.

The argument for a federal income tax increase sums down to this: By government's taking away your money in taxes, your take-home pay goes down. You have less to spend for necessities, you have less to spend for luxuries and you have less to save for yourself. When you spend less, there is less demand for goods and services — homes and automobiles, food and clothing, education for your children, vacations and holiday trips, books and magazines, beer and pretzels — and everything else you think is worth working for.

Now, think this through. When you are forced to buy less, there is less demand for these goods and services. Presumably, those who sell them have to hold the line on prices. This would be fine for you, as a consumer, if it all evened out.

But, how can it even out if government uses the additional money it takes from you in taxes to increase government spending? Instead of the money being spent for the things you think are worth having, it will be spent for the things government officials think you should have.

Government officials think you should have global aid programs; government-financed and tax-subsidized urban renewal projects with residential housing, retail stores and manufacturing establishments financed by your tax money and under government control; utilities owned by government instead of by stockholders; pork barrel public works programs and grandiose great society boondoggles; college and university education "free" for everyone at your expense and hospital and medical care paid by government out of your tax dollars.

That chain of events leads to a lowering of your living standards because you have to settle for a lower quality or a lower quantity of the things you would buy. Moreover, more and more people become dependent on government for the things they can no longer afford — college for their children, medical care for themselves, even houses to live in.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

If your income is to be reduced by a tax increase to fight inflation, then government has a responsibility to reduce its non-defense spending by an equal amount.

Spending by government is just as inflationary as spending by consumers. The prices you pay for the things you want do not necessarily come down. Instead, less of those things are produced because the production effort is shifted to meeting the demand for the things government is spending money for. That is precisely what some economists have in mind when they speak of "less in the private sector and more in the public sector."

You still have a choice, but the choice won't be yours for long unless you let your representatives in government know where you stand right now on further tax increases — federal, state and local.

Major producing states for fresh and processed vegetables are California and Florida.

U. N. Oaths

I would appreciate it very much if you could supply me with a copy of the Oath of Office taken by Ambassadors to foreign countries, as well as United States Ambassadors to the United Nations.

I am also interested in copies of the Oath of Office of United Nations Officials and Oath of Office of United Nations employees to the United Nations.

K. H. C.
New Orleans, La.

Dear Mr. C.:

Ambassador Goldberg took the same oath of office that is taken by every employee of the United States Government, from the President on down. It reads:

"I, (name), of the (State of Residence) do solemnly swear.

"That I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies foreign and domestic;

"That I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same;

"That I take this obligation freely and without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion;

"That I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter, so help me God."

The following is the oath of office taken by all officials and employees of the United Nations:

"I solemnly swear (undertake, affirm, promise) to exercise in all loyalty, discretion and conscience the functions entrusted to me as an international civil servant of the United Nations, to discharge these functions and regulate my conduct with the interests of the United Nations only in view, and not to seek or accept instructions in regard to the performance of my duties from any Government or other authority external to the Organization."

Vietnam Investments

We are starting to get some propaganda here that the Vietnamese war is a colonial war for commercial markets. The statement is made that American business firms have enormous investments in South Vietnam and that the U.S. Government has given American firms long term contracts there—presumably to exploit the country. Could you furnish me with some facts as to the extent of American business interests in Vietnam, the type of business they are in, and any involvement by our government in giving or getting them contracts?

C. A. C.
Boulder, Colo.

Dear Mr. C.:

These private American companies have substantial investments in Vietnam: Caltex (Asia) Ltd. and Esso Standard Eastern have storage and distribution facilities ($1.4 million); Parsons and Whittmore has a paper mill ($1 million); Viet-Nam American Textile and Finishing Mills Ltd. operates a cotton textile mill ($300,000.); Foremost Dairies operates a milk processing plant ($600,000).

In addition, there are some twenty-five small American firms, including trading companies, who are doing business in Viet-Nam with a limited amount of capital investment. Two American banks, Chase Manhattan and Bank of America, have opened branch offices in Saigon. Four large construction firms are performing contract work: Morrison-Knudson, Brown and Root, Raymond International, and J. A. Jones; they have made no direct investment.

9-County Democratic Rally To Host Notables Fri. Oct. 6

U.S. Senator Robert F. Kennedy and Congressman Samuel S. Stratton, Joseph Resnick and John Dow are among the Democratic notables expected at a 9-county Democratic reception scheduled Friday, Oct. 6, in the New York State Armory in Oneonta.

The rally, an informal affair with a cocktail hour from 6 to 8 p.m., is expected to be the largest Democratic affair ever held in Oneonta. The city was picked for the event because it is geographically in the approximate center of the 9-county area.

Dr. Alexander F. Carson, Otsego County Democratic Committee Chairman and a long-time power in state Democratic conclaves scheduled the visit by the Senator and Congressman and is inviting Democrats from Otsego, Delaware, Schoharie, Chenango, Broome, Sullivan, Madison, Greene and Ulster counties.

Committee Chairman Carson said the political leaders will talk briefly and then have an opportunity to talk with the public.

This will be Kennedy's third visit to Oneonta, the first coming during his campaign to wrest the senate post from incumbent Kenneth Keating, R. The next time he came to town he visited State University College, Oneonta, to share in a panel discussion on resources and development.

Stratton is a frequent visitor to Oneonta, most recently to be the featured speaker as the city dedicated its new Post Office. He is also scheduled to be the Founder's Day speaker at Hartwick College this month.

Dow, who represents the adjacent county of Delaware, is also known in the Oneonta area but has never made an appearance here at a public function.

Resnick, currently the target of much publicity for his probe into affairs of the American Farm Bureau, has never made an appearance here.

Tickets are available from any Democratic committeeman.

N.Y.S. E.&G. Recognized For Stockholder Report

New York State Electric & Gas Corp. has been selected to receive a third place award for its 1966 stockholder annual report in the electric utility classification of the 27th Annual Report Survey sponsored by Financial World magazine.

Approximately 5,000 annual reports were reviewed in 95 classifications this year in the annual event to promote the improvement of shareowner financial statements.

Dr. Joseph H. Taggart, executive dean of the Schools of Business, New York University, is chairman of the awards jury which made the selections.

National 4-H Club Week

September 30 to October 7 is National 4-H Club Week. The theme this year is "Join 4-H: A World of Opportunity". This theme suggests the fact that 4-H type organizations now exist in more than 75 countries around the world. It also suggests that this is the time for you to find out just what "A World of Opportunity" there is available through the 4-H program in Otsego County.

Do you know what 4-H is? Four-H work is a practical, informal, out-of-class-room educational program for boys and girls between the ages of 9 to 19. To join, a youngster needs only to sign up and select a project. There are a variety of projects to select from. This program is part of the Nation-wide educational system of the Cooperative Extension Association—a three way partnership of county governments, State land-grant universities and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In Otsego County there is a very active and varied program with over 1000 members enrolled. The majority of these members are enrolled in the 59 clubs throughout the county that are led by some 200 capable adult leaders.

Holmesville Baptist Church Shapes Up. May Open Feb. 1

The Holmesville Baptist church for which ground was broken on Sunday June 25, 1967 is now under cover, windows are beginning to go in, brick siding is being laid and the Rev. Derwin G. Hauser, pastor, looks forward expectantly to a Feb. 1 opening.

This picture, taken on Tuesday Oct. 3, shows Mr. Hauser (r) with George Burman, one of the church members, who is donating what time he can to helping with construction.

At first six men were asked to give a week's time during the construction period to help in building the church. Instead a goodly share of the male congregation agreed to help whenever they had spare time with the result that the church was able to save money helping the general contractor and others where their abilities could be most productive.

The general contractor is William Gelatt of Gelatt, Pa. Fred Nelson of South New Berlin is the masonry contractor while George Malone of Morris is contractor on electrical, plumbing and heating.

The present church, across route 8 from the new building, will continue to be used for church purposes.

He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Jane Walker of Ithaca; two sons, John D. of Appleton, Wisc. and Robert G. of McLean, Va.; ten grandchildren; two nieces, Mrs. Margaret Stratton of Endicott and Mrs. Sterling Harrington of Oneonta; one nephew, Harry B. Ward of Riverhead.

Besides his family, Mr. Hankey leaves a great circle of friends. In the village and valley where he chose to make his home, he was respected and loved for his honesty in business affairs, his genuine interest in the people he met, both young and old, and his cheerful disposition. It has been said more than once this past week, "I don't believe that Bill had an enemy in the world."

He was community minded and most generous with his time and abilities in the service of the public.

From his father, who by trade was a gardener, he derived a love of the outdoors. He especially enjoyed gathering mushrooms in the fall and also knew where the nuts and berries were to be found.

He was a product of the down-to-earth community in which he lived.

New Family Arrives In Gilbertsville

On Thursday night Sep. 28 thirteen little piglets were born starting at 9 p.m. on the George H. Bostwick Farm (Village Farms) near Gilbertsville. Actually they didn't all arrive on Sep. 28 because the complete litter was not delivered until 2 a.m. Friday Sep. 29.

And, unfortunately, their number had decreased to eight by Saturday afternoon, when their mother, Mildred, rolled her 600 lbs. of weight over five of them, suffocating them.

She didn't seem to realize that she had given birth to a very important family because she had been declared State Champion at the 1967 New York State Agricultural Fair at Syracuse earlier in the month, and had been purchased and given a new home in Gilbertsville.

Visiting them on Sunday were Linda Baker (1), 7 and Nancy Baker, 6, daughters of Farm Manager and Mrs. John Baker.

Letter To The Editor Gallinger

ing that same year the police came to our home and took him down for questioning and he was paroled in our care.

"After he was 18 he began to change. He took a more mature interest in life, and although he had lost his chance to go or to graduate from high school, he got a job in a garage and seemed to take a deep interest in it. He became interested in a nice girl and started going to church again. He didn't drink now, and at 20 he married the girl he had come to love. Just before the baby came, my son was sent to Korea. He never came back."

The mother in black touched her eyes with her handkerchief. "I am sure our boys are all right," she said earnestly. "The age from 15 to 17 seems to be the age we think we are losing them, but I believe our sons belong to us, even in those disturbing years. My son had a policerecord as a minor. He could not be disciplined in school. He was lazy. But just the same I prayed for him every night of his life, and loved him deeply through all of that time.

"Please, my friends," she continued, "have faith in your sons. Watch over them during those few years. I am sure that as they grow older and begin to mature into manhood they will see the folly of the old life and begin to live again. We older mothers took to prayer, and our boys seemed to feel the influence of it. When I dropped to my knees in the darkness of my room, I realized that a greater Power than I knew my boy and knew where he was. Now I feel sure of it."

As that mother sat down one could almost feel the hope she had given to those who had come with a problem. Perhaps their children were safe after all.

Mr. Editor, you can look back to a mother who had faith in YOU. That is why you revere her today. It is natural for a kid to be daring, although some seem to carry it too far. But the world is not all bad, even if it appears that way at times. It often seems to us that nobody can love a wild lad. But mothers do. That has been proved many times. My own mother, as well as thousands of other mothers always remembered her children in her prayers. I have seen her many times on her knees beside her bed. A few minutes before she left us she placed her glasses in her old worn Bible, and closed her eyes. Those glasses remained in that old Bible—at the 91st Psalm—for many years after. "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High, shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

It was Napoleon Bonaparte who said, "Let France have good mothers, and she will have good sons."

Thank you -
Very truly yours,
Roy Gallinger
