C. H. S. Wins First League B. B. Game

The Cooperstown High school won its first game in the Eastern Tri-County League Friday evening by defeating Hartwick Seminary at the Yetter gymnasium at that place by the score of 31 to 26.

The result of the first game of the season spoke most highly of the team work both offensive and defensive which Coach Ernest Hotelling has been able to develop in the short time at his disposal and augurs well for the standing of the local five in the series.

Kenyon, at left forward, and Kraham, right forward, starred on the offensive for Cooperstown the former winning fifteen and the latter ten of the thirty-one points rolled up, and Wheeler at center proved a tower of strength.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Last week the smoke from far-off forest fires hung thick over Cooperstown and Otsego county, giving the impression of impending rain which, however, a glance at the sky quickly dispelled.

George Herrick and Ovid Drake were before Justice Russell Warren October 30th having been brought in by Officer McDonough on a charge of public intoxication and the latter for driving an automobile while intoxicated on Main street.

Sunday and haled before Justice Russell Warren to answer to a charge of reckless driving after he had collided with and somewhat damaged the Chevrolet sedan driven by Newton E. D. Gilmore at the corner of Main and Chestnut streets.

Mr. Petrie drew a graphic picture of the going forth of the boys of the nation and of this community to the war. "The boys went," said he, "offering their bodies to wounds and maiming, and offering life itself. They went walking hand in hand with Death. They met Death knowing that Death might claim them at any moment. They went at the call of their country—and they went."

The following item referring to a former well known resident of Cooperstown appeared in a recent issue of the Lumberman's Review: "At the annual concatenation of the Order of Red-Hoos held in Milford, Mass., on September 10, M. Carlton of the Dix Lumber company, Cambridge was chosen to the office of Bojorn on the Supreme Nine. The Cooperstown foot ball team met defeat at Cherry Valley Saturday afternoon by the High School eleven of that place by the score of 11 to 0. The local players with only a few weeks training and the experience of one game were pitted against a team which has been playing winning ball all the fall under the direction of an experienced coach and while they fought stubbornly could not cope with the skill of their opponents.

Apple Pickers Filched Employers' Wealth... Three men were employed by W. I. Skinner, who owns a farm near Richfield Springs, to pick apples. They worked well while on the job, but two days ago they disappeared. Simultaneously with their disappearance Mr. Skinner discovered several pieces of the family silverware and jewelry were missing.

The men gave their names as Harry Easton, Harry Mulder, and Ed Hendricks, when they were hired. The missing items are an open face silver Elgin watch, 13 Rogers silver plate spoons, 12 silver plate forks, one pair gold cuff links and one linen table cloth. Utica police have been asked to cooperate in a search for the trio.

ARMISTICE DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED IN COOPERSTOWN

Armistice Day was ushered in at an early hour Tuesday morning by the ringing of bells to remind the sleeping village of the happy hour November 11, 1918, when the news spread throughout the world of the close of the great conflict.

The members of Clark F. Simmons Post in full uniform paraded the streets of the village in the morning and at noon journeyed to Richfield Springs to be joined with the Post of our sister village in the observance of the day. In the evening they participated in the celebration at Cherry Valley.

On the Sunday evening preceding Armistice Day the Rev. Edward C. Petrie, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, addressed a large union congregation at the Methodist Episcopal church and preached a most eloquent and telling sermon appropriate to the occasion.

Mr. Petrie drew a graphic picture of the going forth of the boys of the nation and of this community to the war. "The boys went," said he, "offering their bodies to wounds and maiming, and offering life itself. They went walking hand in hand with Death. They met Death knowing that Death might claim them at any moment. They went at the call of their country—and they went."

"But many of them went with even a higher motive than that. They gave themselves as a sacrifice on the altar of War that there might be no more war. They said, 'It must not happen again. And that it should not happen again they gave their lives. It was all they could do. It was the supreme sacrifice, and they gave it because they believed that their sacrifice would avail. They thought that this war was to be the last was not alone in their minds. It was in many minds. We remember that almost everyone was saying it. And the thought comes suddenly on Armistice Day that they performed their part of the contract and trusted to us to fulfill ours."

"This is the appeal that sounds in our ears today. We must never allow those voices to grow dim in our ears. We must never allow anything to drown them out—no chorus of preference commercial or political; no consideration of partisan advantage; no courting of political place or power must be allowed to make us deaf to their appeal.

"So I think we are carried back to the soul of man when we think of keeping faith with those who gave their lives that there might be no more war. Preparedness will not do. Disarmament will not do. Treaties of arbitration will not do. The nations meeting in congress will not do, unless a new spirit is born in the souls of men. There must be this new spirit of peace in the machinery of peace and make it go. And I do not know of anything that can furnish this unless it be religion. For it is only religion that deals with the souls of men. It is only religion that can dominate a man's inner nature and set him in the right direction. The religion of Christ can take the selfishness out of a man's heart, and hatred and things that have created war from the beginning of the world."

Shows Need of Larger Health Camp... The report on the committee in charge of the second annual Health Camp for Otsego County, which was held in the machinery of peace and make it go. And I do not know of anything that can furnish this unless it be religion. For it is only religion that deals with the souls of men. It is only religion that can dominate a man's inner nature and set him in the right direction. The religion of Christ can take the selfishness out of a man's heart, and hatred and things that have created war from the beginning of the world."
