Surveying Your

FUTURE

GRADUATION DAY is a memorable blending of the past with the present. But most important of all, on this day, is the bright promise of a future that is yet to be won. The big adventure is just beginning. The opportunity to light up the world is now yours.

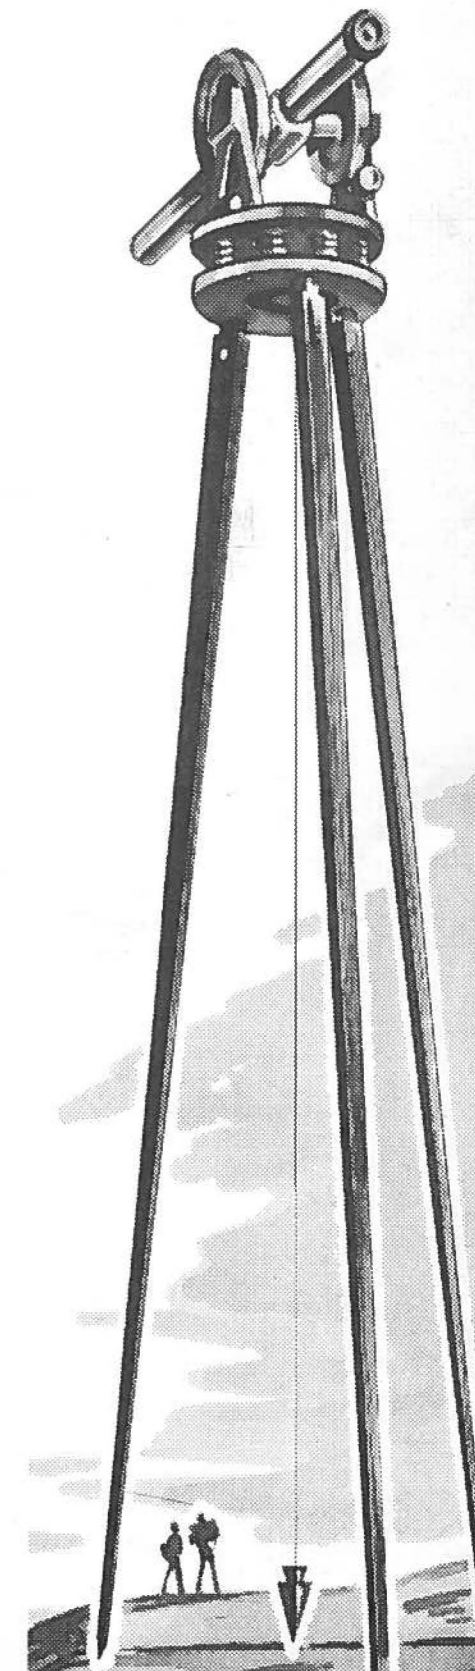

On this day of days, as you stand before family and friends, you are wrapped in the warmth of pleasant memories that will live with you forevermore. You are wearing a discernible look of achievement. The pride of accomplishment is your own personal badge. And rightly so, for graduation is a monument among the milestones that will mark your journey through life.

At this very moment you are looking at a long procession of days and nights that, seemingly, stretch out endlessly before you. They represent the raw material with which you will be working the rest of your life . . . but it is important that you do not spend too much time in the reviewing stand, watching the years pass swiftly by. March with the passing parade. Keep in step with the times, and prepare yourself at all times to take the lead whenever the opportunity arises.

Within the next few months, perhaps in a matter of weeks, you will begin to face some of the major decisions that have a dominant influence on everyone's role in life. Further education? Marriage? Choice of job opportunity and the community in which you will make your home? These are some of the major decisions which will have an important bearing on the future happiness and well-being of yourself and your family-to-be. It is well to plan wisely and proceed cautiously.

Graduation day — at the very beginning of the "big adventure", so to speak — is an especially opportune time to survey your future. This does not mean that you should merely look ahead, however, for the term "survey" has a much broader connotation. Thus, you should take a comprehensive view of the overall direction in which you are now headed. Carefully analyze all of the possibilities, and begin at once to shape your plans accordingly. Now is the time, because — to a surprisingly large degree — each individual is the architect of his own destiny.
