They look like fireman to me. I wonder if they were ending a service for one of their number who passed away? Neat to have some names recorded.

I guess would be Lynn Elliott, eldest brother of my grandfather, who is holding a horse in the 1914 North Road St., stone arch bridge replacement photo, he died Nov. 1921, the same year as his mother. His wife was Edith Light, aunt to Lewis Light, ... See more

Or it could be his younger brother, Ned Elliott, who was electrocuted in Sidney Sept. 1915, which would make me guess the image would have to be 1910 - 1915?

The guy holding the horse at lower right (North Broad St. bridge replacement, 1914. The man in the suit and straw hat standing top right in the upper image, is probably George Elliott Jr., his father).

5 Nov 1914 H.J. (Harry?) Yates bill of $8.00 for fighting fires was refused by the town on the grounds that he wasn't asked.

I was wondering if the marching band was the fire department members as well? Do their uniforms look similar? Or the same members?

My grandfather, Homer Davis, is in the front, first one on the left as you face the picture.

It's great that someone added names to the image. "Shorty" Davis (the "printer's devil", or typesetter at "The Morris Chronicle") is easy to spot. The other image to compare faces with is the picnic image where the men have beer bottles.

I remember uncle Homer and Aunt Anna very well , I remember going to their house when I was very young, Aunt Anna had a snow globe in her dining room, and it was fascinating for me, I guess thats where I learned to love them. I have a whole collection now...
