Morris — The village got a thrill last 'night by a 'blood hunt" that was a preliminary to the visit of the Red Cross blood-mobile here today.

blood denors.

Mr. Sherwood, who will join the Two Gallon Club today, got the idea of fixing up an old water tank to look like a blood bottle. Mounting it, he and Chief Miller aroused the townspeople with siren waits.

They called on residents to report to Morris Central School between 12 noon and 6 p.m. today, so as to guarantee the quota of 125 pints.

ic Mr. Sherwood has been giving blood since 1944 when he was in Camp Wheeler, Georgia. He knows what blood means to fighting men. "We can give a little s of our blood to help them save all of theirs," he said,
