Greene Expects 10,000 Visitors For Annual Labor Day Festival

Day-Long Program Is Planned

Binghamton Press Bureau

Norwich—More than 10,000 persons are expected to visit the Village of Greene Monday, if the weather is good.

The occasion will be the thirty-second annual Labor Day Community Festival, marking the end of the vacation season, and the return back to schools and jobs.

The committee members planning the affair are hoping for one more warm dry day, so that they "can pack them in" in the Greene Athletic Field for the day-long program.

There is no entrance fee.

Proceeds from concessions, rides and the sale of food go to support the Greene Central School Parent-Teachers Association and the athletic field.

The festivities will start with a horse fight in front of the Greene Fire Hall, followed by a parade to the field for a full day of activities ending with fireworks at night.

Music will be furnished during the day by the Oneonta American Legion, Green Dragon Drum Corps, and the Chenango County 4-H Club band.

The 4-H Club also will take another big part in the program by conducting a one-day agriculture and homemaking fair on the grounds.

The club members from six Southern Chenango and Northern Broome County townships will bring their livestock, garden produce and project work to be judged, under the direction of Harry L. Case, Chenango County 4-H Club agent.

If the weather is good, many families will bring their picnic lunches and others will obtain food at the P-TA food tent and spend the day in Greene.

Gets Biggest Job in Comerford Shift

Hanifin to Manage District Theatres

Thomas Hanifin of Binghamton, who started his career as a trumpet player in an orchestra that accompanied the action of silent movies, yesterday was appointed district manager for Comerford theatres in seven Southern Tier and Northern Pennsylvania communities.

His appointment was the top promotion in a series of Comerford shifts that transfer new managers to five Triple Cities motion picture houses. The shifts are effective today.

Fred DeRado, who was working backstage at vaudeville shows here while he was still in grammar school, becomes the manager of the Riviera in Binghamton, succeeding Hanifin, whose promotion has been announced by the Scranton headquarters of the Comerford theatres.

THOMAS HANIFIN

Robert Richards, from the Capitol to the Strand.

Frank Jones, from the Strand, Endicott, to the Capitol.

Kenneth Robinson, from the Cameo, Binghamton, to the Strand, Endicott.

William Senigia, from the assistant manager's post at the Riviera to manager of the Cameo.

Mr. Hanifin is the brother of Binghamton Police Chief Michael J. Hanifin. Born in Binghamton, he became a professional musician after graduation from Binghamton Central High School and joined the pit orchestra conducted by Walter Stanzel, playing at the Capitol. Subsequently the pit orchestra at the silent movies was heightened by appropriate music from such orchestras and Mr. Hanifin's trumpet leaned mood to such silent classics at the Strand as "The Covered Wagon" and "The Iron Horse."

Mr. Hanifin moved out of the orchestra pit in 1930 to become manager of the old Regis Theatre in Chenango Street, now closed, and successfully managed the Suburban, Enjoy, the Strand and Riviera.

A resident of the community for the last year and one-half, Mrs. DuBois entered the state finals by winning a regional contest on the stage of Schine's Oneonta Theatre last night.

One of 13 entries in the elimination contest, Mrs. DuBois, who prefers to be called Norma, won on the basis of her personality, poise, beauty and homemaking skill.

The final decision proved to be "extremely difficult, due to the array of beauties," according to Mrs. Dorothy Walling, women's commentator at Station WIOS, who acted as spokesman for the three judges.

In winning the contest, Mrs. DuBois, whose husband is an area representative for a Poughkeepsie auto supply firm, surrounded herself with a small mountain of gifts, all donated by various merchants in Oneonta.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of Miss Margaret Lynch, 21-year-old surgical nurse at Fox Memorial Hospital in Oneonta, who was crowned second in a statewide contest to select a queen for the State Fair.

She was introduced by Bill Becontt of Oneonta, a member of the staff of Station WPTR, Albany, who was master-of-ceremonies.

Linn Strikers Given New Pledge of Aid

Binghamton Press Bureau

Oneonta—Striking employees at the Linn Coach & Truck Division of Great American Industries, Inc., in Oneonta received more financial aid today, as their walkout continued into its thirteenth day.

The assistance came from Enterprise Local 1864 of the International Association of Machinists at the Enterprise Aluminum Co. in Oneonta.

During a meeting last night, members of the Enterprise unit voted unanimously to give financial help to IAM Local 932 at Linn, which has been on strike since Aug. 24.

DRIVE PLANNED

Amand Heck, Jr., business agent for both IAM locals in Oneonta, said the Enterprise unit also decided to conduct a drive for voluntary contributions from individual members.

The Enterprise local's initial contribution to the Linn strike fund already has been made, according to Mr. Heck, but the amount was not disclosed.

Herbert Taite is president of Enterprise Local 1864, newest of the organized labor groups in Oneonta.

In going to the aid of the Linn local, Enterprise employes followed a path charted by the 3,100 members of IAM Local 1339 at Scintilla in Sidney.

CONTRIBUTION MADE

Last week, the Scintilla local decided to raise $100,000, if necessary, to insure success of the IAM strike in Oneonta.

The first contribution from Scintilla employes, upwards of $1,000, was given to Ernest Burton of Otego, president of IAM Local 932 at Linn, and his colleagues last week.

A second contribution from organized employes at Scintilla is expected Tuesday, Mr. Heck declared.

Linn employes walked off their jobs after company officials reportedly turned a deaf ear to their demands for wage increases averaging 25 cents an hour.

NO PROGRESS

State mediation officials entered the dispute this week, but reported "no progress" after a mediation session at the plant in Oneonta's West End on Wednesday.

Ernest W. Lamone of Albany, district director of the State Board of Mediation, said that another mediation session with union officials will be held at 2:30 p. m. next Wednesday.

Both sides have agreed to reconsider their positions before the meeting, he added.

Linn produces specialty-designed trailers and other mobile units, many of which are used by the Air Force and other branches of the Federal Government.

RFC Is Asked To Waive O&W Loan Default

New York — (AP) — Richard H. Balch, chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee, seeks to have the Reconstruction Finance Corp. waive default on its $5,000,000 loan to New York, Ontario & Western Railroad.

The waiver would keep the $4,285,000 loan in effect and prevent foreclosure on the bankrupt line, now in federal trusteeship.

Balch, of Utica, yesterday sent a telegram to Kenneth Cravens, RFC administrator, in which he said he was appealing "on behalf of the railroad's 1,400 employees and the hundreds of communities it serves."

Balch asked Cravens to "reconsider his recent decision" against waiving default on the loan, secured by the Road's diesel electric locomotives.

The railroad operates about 500 miles of track in Northern New Jersey and upstate New York.
